

About SCRS

The Society for Clinical Research Sites (SCRS) is the leading advocacy organization dedicated to unifying the voice of the global clinical research site community. Representing more than 10,500+ sites in 52 countries, SCRS facilitates industry collaborations and conversations dedicated to site-focused advocacy, education, mentorship and connection. SCRS is an active and influential champion for sites in industry initiatives to ensure that the perspective of sites is heard and valued. Learn more and get involved at myscrs.org. Our voice. Our community. Your success.

Membership Categories

Individual Site

Individual sites are defined as one address with an investigator where clinical research is conducted. Examples are a clinic, a private practice conducting clinical research, a freestanding research site, or a department within a hospital or academic center when the organization is not a member.

Non-Profit/Hospital/Academic Center

Emerging Site

Emerging sites are defined as a site with gross revenue of less than or equal to 250K USD in the prior year and not expected to exceed that amount this year.

Sites in Developing Countries

Sites in developing countries are defined as an address with an investigator where clinical research is conducted in a low, lower-middle, or upper-middle country. See the full list on the SCRS website.

Site Network

Site networks are defined as a group of clinical research sites that conduct research at multiple locations under one organization. The site network category is best financially suited for organizations with 5 or more sites.
